

Memorandum Re: The Potential Political and Economic Applications of Philip Savage's Subliminal "Distant "Influentiality (SDI)

From: Dr. L. Dee Jacobsen, Ph.D., ABCN, Clinical Neuropsychologist, Integrative Medicine Research, Scripps Clinic, La Jolla, CA

Date: January 11, 2000

The attached documents describe Subliminal Distant Influentiality (SDI) which is the unique and powerful bioenergetic mind-force technology developed, tested, and implemented by Philip Savage over the past 25 years. SDI can be utilized to recover health or to modify human thoughts and behaviors at a distance, subliminally, without the subjects' knowing.

Potential applications of SDI are virtually unlimited in the areas of biorestitution, national and international security, political and economic affairs, etc. At this time, Mr. Savage is still prepared to offer his services for the benefit of the American people.

I. Introduction

Over the past five years, my clinical and scientific work has led to many illuminating experiences and a heightened appreciation of the healing/restorative powers of the human mind. It was in the course of this exploration that I encountered Philip Savage and his remarkable works of Biorestitution (healing). During the past year, I have personally observed a series of most impressive biorestorations, including recovery from advanced brain cancer, coronary artery disease and virulent shingles (herpes zoster). Currently I am monitoring the recovery of one of my own patients who suffers from advanced Alzheimer's Disease. I have also reviewed the outcome data from a controlled randomized study in which Mr. Savage provided treatment of children who had suffered severe third degree burns. The five treated children recovered more quickly with far less pain, scarring and skin grafting than the control group children. None of the children were aware of the special treatment they received, thereby eliminating the "placebo effect" as a possible explanation.

Contemplation of these essentially inexplicable clinical outcomes prompted my decision to further explore Mr. Savage's work and the possible underlying mechanisms. Initially, I reviewed electro-physiological measurements (electro-encephalographic and acupuncture meridian energy measurements) obtained during a Savage Bio-Mediation (meditation). The EEG revealed the presence of atypical slow wave (delta) activity of the type most frequently associated with deep sleep. In addition, the level of energy measured in the main acupuncture meridians increased by 38+% over one hour. The magnitude of this increase was unprecedented in previous research conducted upon other "healers." More notably, comparable pre and post treatment energy measurements obtained from a seriously ill man (severe depression and kidney disease) revealed a 100+% increase that was sustained 18 days following a single 20 minute treatment. The patient reported dramatic improvements in his mood, energy level and urinary output that have been sustained for two years.

When queried about the physical, psychological and spiritual mechanisms underlying his work, Mr. Savage informed me of the development of his mind power technology called "Subliminal Influentiality." He pointed out that this technology can be employed to recover health or for the purpose of modifying a person's thoughts and behaviors at a distance.

II. Exploring Subliminal Influentiality

After numerous discussions with Mr. Savage and reading his writings regarding "Subliminal Influence technologies," I have learned that he has successfully utilized this technology many times in the past. Applications have included alteration of consciousness and behavior in individual terrorists, politicians and businessmen with an impact that is typically dramatic over a period of days or weeks.

My own study and observations of Mr. Savage's Subliminal Influence work have indicated that his special abilities clearly supercede those "psychotronic," (e.g. telepathy, remote viewing, psychokinesis, etc.) phenomena that were previously investigated as potential intelligence or weapons systems in the Soviet Union, USA and other countries.

Subliminal Distant Influentiality (SDI) appears to be a uniquely precise form of bioenergetics in which molecular polarity of neurons is modified at deep pre-conscious levels of the brain. This unique mind force can be utilized to alter human consciousness and behavior in subtle but pervasive ways that will render the target subject, in some manner dysfunctional. For example, the subject may exhibit aberrant feelings, thoughts and behaviors that could prompt early retirement, hospitalization, or other desired but non lethal outcomes. This technology can also be employed to potentiate positive psychological and behavioral outcomes, as well.

According to Mr. Savage's testing, desired outcomes can be reliably obtained over 95% of the time if appropriate target data are available, e.g. biographical and psychological profiles, as well as timely feedback regarding changes in behavior.

III. Demonstrating the Scientific Validity of Subliminal Distant Influentiality

The process of scientifically demonstrating the effective reality of SDI to prospective employers should not be too complicated. Once an agreement on implications of a positive test outcome has been obtained, Mr. Savage will provide several quick, uncompensated field demonstrations of SDI, as follows:

Five or six human targets would be designated. Each target should be well known so that adequate baseline behavior could be profiled. The desired (but unexpected) change of behavior would be designated and defined for each subject. A simple individual Likert scale could be easily developed for establishing with reasonable reliability the nature and degree of behavior change for each target. An acceptable time frame for accomplishing desired changes in behavior would also be required.

Subject selection for the field experiment would be conducted by the potential employer of Mr. Savage and his SDI team. Four of the six subjects should be local and well known to the potential employer. This would facilitate pre and post test behavior assessment. Two additional subjects could be minor but well known international undesirables (e.g., Haiti's President Aristede) whose removal from power might be desired.

IV. Practical Limitations and Ethical Considerations in the Application of Subliminal Distant Influentiality

The universal natural laws and principals governing the operation of SDI determine how this technology may be applied. More specifically, Mr. Savage cannot utilize SDI to intervene in human affairs unless he is requested to act and receives a "warrant" to act from one or more individuals with whom he has established a contractual relationship. In other words, he cannot carry out actions of his own volition, nor can he act solely for the purpose of personal benefit.

Further, he operates on a reciprocating basis. He cannot employ SDI effectively unless he is compensated. Any financial compensation he receives must be utilized, with the exception of living/security expenses, to support needy children, rainforest preservation, native peoples, ecology related research, etc. Unless these conditions are respected he is unable to act.

Mr. Savage has also informed me that his 25 years of experience testing and modifying SDI have revealed additional limitations. Most importantly, SDI cannot be applied to directly terminate a life or for the purpose of inducing a disease state. Neither can SDI produce psycho-behavioral changes in targeted individuals that would lead directly to the destruction of innocent or harmless people.

During numerous discussions, Mr. Savage has outlined for me his fundamental ethical principles. He has stated, "My sole agenda is to protect and serve life and natural harmony by all legal means necessary."

He is also bound to respect the laws of any country in which he resides. He is also an extremely loyal person who has served past private military and governmental employers faithfully. He is neutral and unaffiliated in political affairs and therefore has no political agenda of his own. He has characterized himself as "an ideal mercenary" who will serve without question almost any employer with the exception of those who would act most blatantly to harm the living earth.

V. Philip Savage, Biographical Information and Residency Status

Mr. Savage's special bioenergetic abilities originate in his Celtic heritage and childhood shamanic training that was rooted in 5,000 years of orally transmitted tradition.

These skills were developed further during several years of clandestine counterintelligence and counter-terrorist work conducted under the auspices of the French government. This work was sometimes conducted in close cooperation with U.S. Intelligence operatives.

His government service was followed by a continuation of his education as he completed advanced degrees in Anthropology, Criminology and Human Behavioral Science.

During the 1980's, Mr. Savage was also renowned in Europe for his healing work and his advocacy for the Breton independence movement. This work yielded much notoriety and financial success.

Dr. L. Dee Jacobsen, PhD