

Several of the very many French Press Articles on the Political Conspiracy against Philip Gwezh

French Private Television and the French Right-Wing:
True Targets of the Gwezh and Sabatier Scandal

On December 28, 1990, Philip Gwezh, the Healer Prophet and many former patients whom he had previously cured, were the special guests of the famous French journalist (Patrick Sabatier) on his immensely popular TV show. Twelve million viewers were watching their TV sets for this historical event. The media impact of the show is indescribable. Philip Gwezh, the Breton, did not want to give his address or phone number during the show, therefore all the telephone centers of the French TV immediately went into total overload and shut down. There was the same telephone saturation in innumerable Breton city halls because everybody was calling. Right away, more than fifty thousand letters were mailed to the French TV. Everyone in France was struggling to get the address of the Healer prophet.

In January 1991, Philip Gwezh set up his organization, Judgment of God, to try answering the needs of so many hopelessly sick people. In six months of work, Judgment of God officially received one million dollars in donations.

In September 1991, the French police stormed Philip Gwezh's headquarters and put under arrest all his collaborators, but they could not get the Healer Prophet who, since April, was already in Greenland setting up his humanitarian center of "Archeo-Therapy."

Political Police Conspiracy

On March 17, 1992, the super-star journalist, Patrick Sabatier and his wife who produce the TV show were arrested by the Fourth Judiciary Brigade and interrogated for forty-eight hours. During all this time, they were subjected to all sorts of violence, threats and humiliations.

What is the reason for such unusual treatment of such super-famous VIP's? Only their association with Philip Gwez's alleged "criminal gang."

The day after, the star journalists were charged with "wrongful advertisement" [sic], assisting the "practicing of medicine without a licence" and assistance to "criminal fraud." Millions and millions of TV viewers in France were completely dumbfounded: They could not believe that the police would trash so badly their beloved idol.

Such an unprecedented scandal does not happen just one week before the French elections, without a secret agenda, especially when one knows how much pressure the police have been putting on the one right-wing employee of Judgment of God: The police are boasting that he is Philip Gwez's liaison with the conservative French forces who are threatening to win big in the forthcoming elections.

Unfortunately for the French police and the "fascist conspiracy" they were trying to fabricate, everyone learned that most of Philip Gwez's collaborators are Israelis. Many former leftist radicals are also part of his team which also includes a former personal collaborator of the general De Gaulle. So much for the right-wing theory!

Blackmailing the French Non-Governmental Television

Since their attempt to link Philip Gwez to the French conservative opposition has failed dismally, the Socialist government is trying to use the scandal against the Director of the French private TV channel.

In 1990 and 1991, he dared to air several TV shows that greatly embarrassed and infuriated the French leftist government. No better way for Mitterand in his self-deification, to put pressure on the one man who can capture millions and millions of viewers on the only non-governmental French TV channel.

Just to prove the political conspiracy: The $6.000.000 filed against him for contempt of the rules of TV competition. More than a mere symbol, the French private TV now knows that it has a political threat hanging just above its head.

The only hope of the French private TV station is for them to last long enough to reach the next elections.

More politic repression than in the scandal of the HIV contaminated blood.

Prior to the conspiracy, Philip Gwez h had been working more than eight years without any sort of problem and hundreds of patients had been cured by him just in the few months that his organization, Judgment of God, functioned. And yet the police could come up with only two completely fabricated complaints against him. For the first one, a mere misdemeanor, he was judged in absentia and sentenced to ... a ticket! For the second, the plaintiff felt some scruples of conscience and dropped the lawsuit!

Despite such a complete legal vacuum, the French police dared to put under arrest all the people working in the organization, Judgment of God, and, indeed, the TV star journalist. We do not want to take sides in such an ultra complicated story, but when one compares the means used by the Police against Philip Gwez h and the TV star journalist with what - they have been doing in the horrible HIV contaminated blood scandal, one can only be extremely shocked! By the way, a very interesting twist in Philip Gwezh adventures has just occurred with his surprise arrest in the United States.

Natural Medicines Under Attack

The whole team of Judgment of God has been arrested and her chairman has been incarcerated until January 1992, while a support committee for Philip Gwezh was created by former patients he had previously cured. The TV star journalist and his wife have been arrested and charged, then released pending trial. France is seeking the extradition of Philip Gwezh from the United States. The conspiracy against Philip Gwezh and the journalist is provoking the complete neutralization of all forms of natural medicine and of more than four thousand practitioners who formerly practiced their art in France. Before they attacked Philip Gwezh, the media and the public were becoming more and more favorable to the idea.
